Stuart James Terry was born in 1952, in San Diego, to Helen and Fred Terry, first generation Scotch/Irish and Italian. During K to 8 at St. Didacus, the Sisters of Mercy enjoyed Stuart so much, they required him to attend sixth grade a second time. Growing up with a Dad who was a aeronautics mechanic during World War II, was the guidance needed to appreciate fixing broken machines. During the high school years, Stuart decided his ability of taking anything apart and putting it back together again was a gift. A two semester auto shop class determined cars and trucks would be the focus of his existence.

After a year in College, Stuart received a draft notice and joined the California Army National Guard. Enjoying US Army Wheel and Track schools for six months, Stuart gained more knowledge about Automotive theory and sub-systems. During the 25 years with the National Guard, Stuart rose to the position of Battalion Motor Sergeant leading a 35 person Maintenance Platoon.
